

Christina Stelmacovich
Mezzo Soprano

Christina Stelmacovich studied voice at the University of Toronto specializing in vocal performance with Lois Marshall and continued her studies in Cassalmaggiore, Italy in a summer program run by the Oberlin School of Music. She has performed with such renowned conductors as Dr. Elmer Iseler, Lydia Adams, Sir David Willcocks, Kevin Mallon, Christopher Jackson and Robert Cooper as well as various choirs and orchestras across Canada.

She was a finalist in the CBC/Radio-Canada National Competition for Young Performers and a finalist for the prestigious Concours Musical International de Montreal: Voice 2005.

As a result of the competition, Christina made her debut performance with the New World Orchestra in Mexico City under the direction of Johannes Ullrich performing Mozart's Coronation Mass. Her most recent performances include Bach's St. John Passion with the Elmer Iseler Singers under the direction of Lydia Adams, Bach's St. Matthew Passion with The Cellar Singers under the direction of Albert Greer, Mozart's Mass in C with the Algoma Chamber Singers of Sault Ste. Marie, Rossini's Petite Messe Solennelle with the Burlington Civic Chorale and Duruflé's Requiem with the Metropolitan Festival Choir under the direction of Dr. Patricia Wright.

Ms. Stelmacovich's future schedule includes Mozart's Vespers and Litanies with the Amadeus Choir of Canada, a performance of opera excerpts with the Burlington Civic Chorale and Händel's Messiah with the Elmer Iseler Singers.

She is a featured soloist on two recordings with the Aradia Ensemble on the Naxos label of Christmas Motets by Charpentier, a disc of works by Canadian composer Christos Hatzis entitled Everlasting Light for CBC records, a Christmas CD entitled Gaudete with the Metropolitan Festival Choir and the first recording of Ukrainian polyphonic music of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries entitled Partesni Motets with Musicus Bortnianskii.

Christina currently teaches voice privately and York University, Toronto, Canada.